GERAGHTY THREATENS ALIENATION SUIT

MOTHER DEFENDS "JACK"

"Put Up Job," Says Mrs. Geraghty; Ready to Fight Separation Suit

Chief developments today in the crash of the Geraghty romance shaped as follows:

1—Frederick Wiegersky of No. 33 State street, lawyer for John E. Geraghty, declared that if any divorce action, as rumored, was brought by Mrs. Joslin French Geraghty, no alienation suit would probably be filed against the members of the French family.

2—"Jack" Geraghty denied any quarrel with his heiress-wife, and declared he knew of no reason why she should file suit for separate maintenance, as she has done at Newport.

3—Mrs. Geraghty left the Copley-Plaza Hotel today, saying she was going to be away from Boston for two days.

4—"Jack's" mother, Mrs. John S. Geraghty of Newport, charges that some "hidden influence" has been at work to induce Julia to file separation papers, and that it looks like a put-up job."

Mrs. Getty in her suit for separate maintenance charges cruelty and non-support. She asks custody

Exclusive Cable by the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Berlin, via London, April 30.—The Red Guards (Bolshevik troops) are reported to be steadily winning in Bavaria and have captured about a dozen towns in their latest drive. Despite the news of the Communist victories, the Bavarian Reds are said to have only seven thousand reliable troops. The others are only hirelings. It is feared that the shooting of the Communist leader Schmitz at Nuremburg may cause trouble, for he was liked by the working classes. The Soviet troops at Nuremburg have begun to erect barricades.

Husband Sentenced for Non-Support; Wife Faints

Walter Mackie of K street, South Boston, was in the South Boston Court today, charged with non-support of his wife and children. He was found guilty and sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. He appealed.

Judge Day had asked Mackie if he were willing to give his wife $8 each week, after he admitted earning from $50 to $75 a week.

"I will if I can," said Mackie.

"I am not asking you about 'if you can,'" said Judge Day, "I am asking you what you will do."

"If I can, I will," repeated Mackie.

Judge Day then sentenced the man to six months.

When the sentence was read the young wife of Mackie fainted and was carried from the courtroom.

SAYS CASSIDY'S SON OPPOSED DR. MURPHY

Discouraged Suitors for Sister's Hand, Declares Witness in $8,000,000 Will Case

Bangor, Me., April 30.—By charging that Dr. T. J. Murphy, his brother-in-law, drank to excess and ran after other women, James W. Cassidy caused an estrangement between his sister Mary and her father, according to testimony here today in the Cassidy will case.

Various prominent Bangor men testified on the stand to Dr. Murphy's good character. These witnesses included Postmaster William F. Curran, former Mayor Charles Mullen, Joseph Mullen, Frank Mincher, William Nickerson, Merton French, Eben Leavitt and Thomas F. Allen.

John F. Cassidy, a younger brother of James, and other heirs are seeking to break the will on the ground that James exerted undue influence over his father, the late millionaire lumberman, to trustee of the estate, which totals $8,000,000.

According to evidence, James opposed the marriage of his sister to Dr. Murphy, and also discouraged all other suitors who came to the house. Although he failed to prevent the marriage, it is charged he so embittered his father against Dr. Murphy that the millionaire refused to recognize the little girl born to his daughter, although the mother used to hold the child up to the window for its grandfather to see. The elder Cassidy did not speak to Dr. Murphy for five years following the marriage.

So many times was the question put by Attorney Whipple, "Did Dr. Murphy drink" that Attorney Patangall took occasion to object, remarking dryly: "This is not a prohibition convention, Brother Whipple."

BARK ON ROCKS AT SCITUATE

Three Tugs Are Standing by the Leaking Professor Koch

Scituate, April 30.—Her captain confused by the lights on the government proving ground, which he mistook for Minot's Light, the Russian bark Professor Koch went ashore today on Long Ledge, Sand Hills. Her steel plates were badly strung when she struck.

Three tugs stood by the bark until high tide, when she was floated off the rocks. An attempt was made to tow the bark into Scituate Harbor, but she quickly filled with water and grounded between the breakwaters. She will be pumped out and it may be necessary to lighter some of her cargo before she can be towed into port.

Captain Franzen said that according to Captain K. W. Karlsson, master of the bark, the accident was due to confusion over the lights.

The bark carries a crew of seventeen men, and all remained aboard after she struck.

The Professor Koch carries a cargo of wool and hides, mostly wool, from East London, South Africa. Her cargo is consigned to Jeremiah Williams & Co. and Joseph Kochland & Co. of Boston.

The Professor Koch is owned by G. Erickson of Marichaum, Russia, according to Lloyds Register. The tugs Confidence, Neptune and Pallas from Boston went to the bark's assistance.

The bark was built at Glasgow in 1891. She is 258 feet long and of 1,102 tons gross register.

American's Chain of Fish Stores Lowered Cost of Living

For two months all New England has been eating fish purchased at cost price!

The ends which the Boston American set itself out to attain when, February 28, it opened its fish stores have been attained. All through New England the price of fish at retail has been cut; the public of New England has been made to realize that fish is an every day a week food, cheap and healthful; and the fishing industry has been saved to Boston.

Today the connection of the Boston American with the chain of fish stores bearing its name ceases. Although, it is understood, the stores will continue to serve the people with fish at rockbottom prices, and Mr. Mills from his office, No. 101 Tremont street, will continue to ship fish to all sections of New England, from this date on the stores will not be under the supervision of the Boston American.

German Submarine Is Here to Boost Victory Loan

A German submarine docked at Boston today.

She was the U-111, one of the six Teuton submersibles turned over to America by the terms of the armistice, and was in charge of Lieutenant Commander F. A. K. Dunbin. Her entrance to the port of Boston marked the further progress of the Victory Loan toward its country-wide quota.

The submarine accompanies the U. S. S. Kentucky, the Victory Loan ship. Bonds will be sold by her officers. At certain hours the public will be invited to inspect the ship, but "Victory button wearers" can visit her at any time. A band concert by a Marine band on the deck of the boat attracted thousands.

BIGGEST GAIN FOR VICTORY LOAN

$122,939,000 Subscribed to Date by 111,893 Buyers in New England

There is no laggard spirit in Boston and New England where the Victory Loan is concerned.

Returns for the eighth day of the drive show that in the face of discouraging reports from all over the country New England registered the largest day's receipts since those of the opening day.

The eighth day total for New England was $20,235,000, and the total tabulated up to today at the Federal Reserve Bank is $122,939,000, which is only a little short of one-third of the $375,000,000 assigned as the quota of this district.

U-BOAT ARRIVES.

The total number of individual subscribers on the eighth day was 18,938, making a total of 111,893 who have taken Victory Notes in New England to date, although this is less than half of the 249,171 who subscribed in the first eight days of the Fourth Liberty Loan.

Boston's total subscription for the day was $5,148,000, which makes the city's gross total $38,515,000 and an approximate net total of $29,000,000 after transfer of credits.

Vermont still tops the New England list with 55.5 per cent. of its quota subscribed, and Connecticut is second with 48 per cent.

The former German submarine U-111 arrived in Boston Harbor today.

$25,000 Salary for Drummond, League Secretary

Sir Eric Drummond, who has just been appointed secretary of the League of Nations at a salary of $25,000 a year, has done secretarial work practically all his life, having served as private secretary to several of the most important men in the British empire. As a British secretary in political life assumes much more of the work of his chief than men in similar positions in this country, his appointment is said to be of much interest and importance.

The new secretary has been in the past private secretary to Arthur J. Balfour, British foreign secretary, Viscount Grey; Herbert H. Asquith when the latter was British Premier, and Lord Pirbmuzine under secretary of foreign affairs at the time.

He was born August 17, 1876, son of the eighth Viscount Strathallan, and is half brother and heir presumptive to the Earl of Perth.

Sir Eric came to the United States with the British high commission in 1917 to discuss America's part in the war. He was married in 1906 to Angela Mary, the youngest daughter of the eleventh Baron Harriss. They have two daughters and one son.

ALLIES ARE RUSHING WORK ON TREATY

Terms May Be Ready for Submission to German Delegates Saturday or Monday

Paris, April 30.—The finishing touches were being put on the peace treaty today. The pact probably will be handed to the German delegates Saturday or Monday by Premier Clemenceau in the presence of President Wilson, Lloyd George and other peace conference leaders.

It is not believer that the Italians will return to Paris in time for the ceremony. The Italian delegation will not be read out of the conference unless they read themselves out. Thus the responsibility for their failure to sign the treaty will rest solely with themselves.

JAP CLAIMS SATISFIED.

Baron Makino, Japanese Foreign Minister, today confirmed earlier advices to the International News Service, that the Japanese claims on Shantung peninsula have been satisfied, and that there will be no new controversy to disturb the peace conference.

"The Japanese delegates will not withdraw," said Makino, denying rumors that had been in circulation for several days. "We are obtaining satisfaction with regard to Kiauchau. We undertook to restore the port to China, and we have never broken our word. We insisted upon being allowed to fulfill our undertaking before without permitting our allies to doubt our good faith."

The impression is that the Germans will be given two or three days to read the treaty and then permitted further time to ask for interpretations. They will then be allowed two weeks in which to communicate with Weimer.

MUST REMAIN AT VERSAILLES.

In the meantime, the delegation will be held at Versailles. French officials declare that if the Germans attempt to return to Weimer after receiving the treaty, their act will be regarded as breaking off peace negotiations.

The foreign ministers met again today to take up the right of Jewish minorities in countries involved in the peace treaty as well as the question of cables and a temporary regime for Schleswig after peace is signed.

The Polish commission also met today to make definite settlement of the boundary of the new nation.

The Japanese will retain their rights in the Shantung peninsula. That is the only result that can be seen from the conferences on the Chino-Japanese dispute over Kiao-Chau.

It is understood that a decision has been reached to insert a clause in the treaty for reconsideration of Germany's rights in the Shantung peninsula, and that they revert to Japan.

Germany had a ninety-nine-year lease on Kiao-Chau, which lies on the apex of the Shantung peninsula.

In return Japan is said to be pledged to demolish the forts defending Kiao-Chau and to allow the Chinese government to control both the peninsula and the city, so far as local affairs are concerned.

In addition the Chinese government is to retain railway and other rights for an indefinite period of time.

The Japanese delegates in conference with President Wilson and others displayed ironclad instructions from Tokio that Germany's rights in the Shantung peninsula must absolutely be transferred to Japan without any delay.

BAD SITUATION RELIEVED.

Inasmuch as conditions regarding the Shantung peninsula are different from those at Pekin, where the secret treaty spirit of London does not cover the dispositions of the city, President Wilson was not in a position to interfere, it was pointed out.

The concessions secured by Japan would be extremely masterful in China. It is said, whereas under the old regime, they would have been exploited by Germany.

The reported conciliatory action by the United States is believed to have relieved a bad situation. For, if a vote had been taken, Japan probably would have had the support of Great Britain, Italy and France, leaving America standing alone.

The compromise makes it possible for a unanimous agreement, thus removing a big obstacle which stood in the way of submitting the treaty to the German delegates on Saturday or Monday.

The Big Three—President Wilson, Premier Lloyd George and Premier Clemenceau—met again early today and the Chino-Japanese situation was given further consideration.

Japan is promising to relinquish eventually any rights she may have acquired in the Shantung peninsula to China. It is possible, however, that this phase of the situation will be passed upon by the League of Nations.

The German delegates who have just reached Versailles have been pointing out the possibility that they may refuse to sign the treaty.

In answer to this propaganda French officials are inquiring: "What then?"

But despite the propaganda it is believed certain the Germans will sign "on the dotted line" without any quibbling.

Belgians Now Accuse Conference of Ignoring Claims of Their Nation

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and Petit Journal.

Paris, April 30.—The Belgian delegates to the peace conference are profoundly disturbed with the results attained thus far with respect to Belgium.

They today reaffirmed their claims to the larger part of the initial indemnity German will be required to pay, totalling $5,000,000,000. The original award gives Belgium $3,000,000,000 of this sum.

The delegates declared that there are 600,000 unemployed in Belgium and that while the country is flooded with manufactured articles, the plants that operate their own people's employment.

The delegates also deplored the fact that Belgium has not obtained satisfaction on the territorial point. The question of her claim to Limburg was adjourned.

The Belgian demand for freedom of navigation on the Scheldt was also put off and the suggestion for a rectification of the Prussian frontier, giving Belgium territory with which she could be extremely masterful in China. It is said, whereas under the old regime, they would have been exploited by Germany.

The reported conciliatory action by the United States is believed to have relieved a bad situation. For, if a vote had been taken, Japan probably would have had the support of Great Britain, Italy and France, leaving America standing alone.

The compromise makes it possible for a unanimous agreement, thus removing a big obstacle which stood in the way of submitting the treaty to the German delegates on Saturday or Monday.

Italian Newspapers Say That Orlando's Speech Was Complete Answer to President Wilson

Rome, April 29.—Premier Orlando's speech was a complete answer to President Wilson and other allied statesmen who oppose Italian claims to Fiume, said the Tribuna and other Italian newspapers today.

Opposition by the radical Socialists represented by a group of forty deputies to the prime ministers demand that Fiume become a part of Italy, was regarded as futile. It is believed that the overwhelming support given the government by the chamber of deputies will convince President Wilson that the Italian people are firmly backing Orlando and Sonnino and that he will be forced to give ground.

The chamber registered a vote of confidence in Premier Orlando, and the government by 283 to 40, after several hours of speech-making, in which supporters of the government claim for Fiume were loudly applauded, only the radical wing of the Socialist party remaining silent.

The vote was on motion of former Premier Luzzati, who had previously addressed the chamber. Luzzati moved that:

"The chamber of deputies, the protector of the dignity and the interpreter of the will of the Italian people, declare itself solidly with the government and affirms its full confidence that it will maintain the supreme rights of Italy as indispensable conditions for a just and durable peace."

The chamber adjourned immediately after the vote was taken, amid cries of "Viva Fiume," "Viva Italia" and "Viva Italia."

The shouts were taken up in the square outside, where the great crowd that gathered early in the afternoon had lingered, awaiting the outcome of the vote of confidence.

Premier Orlando was forced to pause repeatedly during his address because of outbursts of applause.

"Italy," he said, "believes her claims are based on right and justice and should be accepted in their entirety. The charge of imperialism is unjust. Italy, which has yielded to sentimentalism rather than to selfishness."

The Rome Council has passed a crisis demanding the annexation of Fiume.

German Peace Envoys Ill at Ease at Cool Formality of Greeting

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service and Petit Journal.

Versailles, April 30.—Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, German foreign secretary, and other members of the German peace delegation, arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Their mission is practically now complete.

The reception was changed when Von Brockdorff-Rantzau stepped from the train, a tall, thin figure, with the harsh features of a typical Prussian Junker. He started when photographers set off magnesium flashes, and stood bareheaded while the Prefect Chalell said very coldly:

"In the name of the department of Seine and Oise and the government of the republic, I have the mission to salute the German delegation in the name of Colonel Henry, head of the allied military mission, which will be attached to you."

Rantzau formally thanked the prefect for the courteous arrangements for the delegation and for their reception. He plainly felt the humiliation of his position, holding his hat in his hand and trembling violently. The party then drove off silently to their hotels.

Credentials Committee Considers Certificates of German Peace Envoys

By JOHN T. PARKERSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, April 30.—With the arrival at Versailles of the remaining members of the German peace delegation, headed by Foreign Secretary von Brockdorff-Rantzau, the allied credentials commission today began verifying the credentials of members of the German mission.

Jules Cambon, former French Ambassador to Berlin, is head of the credentials commission. The task is particularly pleasing to him because during his four and one-half years residence in the German capital he was repeatedly subjected to humiliations.

While the dozen newspapermen who accompanied the German delegation are "enjoying equal liberty of movement with other members of the mission, they are guarded by French troops and are not allowed to converse with allied pressmen.

As far as is ascertainable the dispatches of the German correspondents will be treated in the same manner as those of other correspondents, the German delegates having the use of special wires.

GERAGHTY MAY SUE HIS WIFE'S FAMILY

Prepared to Fight Heiress' Reported Court Action for Separation of the Geraghty boy. The hearing has been set for September 15 at Newport.

The news of the separate maintenance suit aroused no regret, that Mrs. Geraghty had in mind a divorce action, to be instituted later.

"Jack" himself declared in Boston today that he had no knowledge of any action brought by his wife beyond what he had read in the newspapers; also that he knew no reason why any suit should be instituted.

Their six-year-old boy, "Jack, Jr.," is in Newport, where Mrs. Geraghty has been staying with her mother, Mrs. Paulina Leroy French, at "Mapleshade."

Today Geraghty declared he would fight to keep the boy.

Geraghty explained his wife's living with her mother for the past two months by the statement that they had been having Brooklins apartment until June.

READY TO MAKE CONTEST.

Geraghty's lawyer, Mr. Wingersky, said today that so far he had no knowledge of any suit, for separate maintenance or otherwise, filed by Mrs. Geraghty, and that no service of any sort had been made upon him client, so far as he knew. In regard to the boy, he had complained to no voice action, Mr. Wingersky said.

"If any divorce action is brought we propose to contest it to the limit. We shall also contest any attempt to gain for Mrs. Geraghty the custody of the boy.

"Moreover, if this suit is brought, it is likely that suits will be brought by us against some members of the French family for alienation of the affections of Mrs. Geraghty."

"Jackie" mother, Mrs. John S. Geraghty, rushed promptly to her boy's defense at Newport today. Speaking of the report that her daughter-in-law charged non-support, she said:

"Jack has been sending a good part of his navy pay to Julia and the little boy regularly. Jack was always a hard worker. No charge of non-support can be brought against him. Of course, Jack never had a million dollars. But he always earned good money."

Regarding the relations of "Jack and Julia," the elder Mrs. Geraghty said:

"Things were all right when they lived on the Yerxa farm and later in the Brookline apartment. About that time Julia told me that she was lonesome, with Jack down South. As a machinest's mate in the naval aviation service, he was stationed at Pensacola. But it now looks to me as though some hidden influence had induced Julia to file separation papers. Also it looks to me like a put-up job."

There was a Newport version today that Mrs. Geraghty did not file suit for divorce because Geraghty is a Roman Catholic and that the second of their two marriage ceremonies was by the rites of that church.

TWO MARRIAGE CEREMONIES.

When seventeen-year-old Julia French eloped with her father's chauffeur in 1911 from Newport they motored to Central Village, Ct., where they were married by the Rev. E. F. Perry, a Protestant clergyman. Then they journeyed on to Springfield, where they put up for a few days at the home of Geraghty's aunt, Mrs. Joseph Harris.

The second ceremony took place in Springfield. It was performed by the Rev. M. A. Kelly at the parish house of St. Michael's Cathedral. The bride retained her connection with the Episcopal church, but agreed, by the second ceremony, to the Catholic church requiring that any children of the union should be raised in that faith.

mately $3,500,000 when these men are discharged," said a disbursing officer.

That includes what was paid the men of the T. D.

Among the men of the 76th Division are Sergeant John F. McGuinness, Headquarters Company, 14th Infantry, 1st street, Cambridge, and Private Elmer J. Casey of Mt. Pleasant avenue, Roxbury, both of whom received honorable mention in General Orders. They were formerly connected with the Tomahawk Rifles, a Roxbury organization.

CONFIDENCE MEN ARRESTED.

A gang of New York confidence men have been apprehended by the State police. They were circulating among soldiers at the receiving station, urging them to buy a piece of ribbon attached to a safety pin for twenty-five cents. Others, it is stated, introduced a gambling device to fleece soldiers out of their money. One game was in progress when the promoters were driven off. General Wood was apprised of the affair and ordered the military police to place guards in the vicinity of the trains with instructions to arrest all undesirables.

Brigadier-General Michael J. Lenihan has been ordered to report for duty in this cantonment by the War Department. Rumor is current that he will succeed Major-General McCain, who, it is stated, will be assigned to another post, though this has not been announced.

His lower set of teeth gone and part of the jaw bone shot away by a piece of shrapnel, Private John H. Johnson, D Company, 23d Infantry, 2d Division of Bridgeport, Ct., is undergoing treatment at the dental infirmary here. He is connected with a casual company and recently returned from France.

Johnson cannot speak coherently, his face being badly disfigured. By the time he leaves this camp, though, he will be as well as ever as the dental surgeons are taking a great deal of interest in his case. He received the wound during the Champagne drive last October. The shrapnel struck him under the chin and ripped it away, leaving a hole in his left cheek. He has the piece of shrapnel wrapped in a bottle and will keep it as a souvenir. He was a carpenter before the war.

GIVEN UP FOR DEAD.

Sitting in a dental chair at the infirmary, Johnson told the surgeons of his experience as they worked over him. He was given up for dead. How he pulled through is a miracle, Major H. C. Pearcy of Bangor, Me., in charge of the infirmary, feels certain that Johnson will be all right in a week or more. He has ordered him fortified with a set of lower teeth, which will be held in place by an artificial gum and fastened to a mechanical jawbone under the Gilmore system.

Since the Yankee Division arrived here the first of the month and up to the discharge of the men this week the dental surgeons have been the busiest men in camp. Approximately 350 men of the division, whose teeth were imperfect as a result of wounds, were cared for. Many of these suffered from "trench mouth" and ulceration of the gum tissues, caused by shock to their nervous system.

'Looping Lotha' Smith to Fly Here and Land on Common

"Looping Lotha" is coming to Boston—by air.

One of the first exhibition flyers in the United States, Lotha A. Smith, took a commission in the Army Air Service as soon as war was declared. He has been overseas for months and now is stationed at Rolling Field, just outside of Washington, D. C.

Lieutenant Smith won the title of "Looping Lotha" through his acrobatic proclivities. According to a letter received in Boston today, Lieutenant Smith leaves Washington Saturday, weather permitting, flying a Curtiss biplane with a Hispano-Suiza motor. He intends landing on the Common, and during his stay in Boston will give at least one flying exhibition over the city.

Lieutenant Smith's trip will be in the interest of Air Service recruiting. Although he has spent hundreds of hours in the air, Lieutenant Smith enjoys an unusual reputation. He has never "cracked up" an airship, never broken a propeller, and has never so much as punctured a tire.

DECLARES SON WAS SACRIFICED TO MAKE HOLIDAY FOR BOSTON

STRICKEN FATHER'S CHARGE

Howard to Ask for Investigation of Flight Tragedy Off the Cape

Before the Lusitania disaster, Quakers; after, earth-Quakers.

This was the epigram of Clinton N. Howard, father of Ensign John Gough Howard, one of the three naval aviators lost when their plane fell into the sea on Yankee Division parade day. Mr. Howard referred to his own family.

Since the accident he has been with coast guards patrolling the coast between Highland Light and Cape Race, where parts of the wrecked plane were picked up. Finally relinquishing all hope of finding his missing boy, the father took his departure. According to report, he will ask for an investigation by the Secretary of Navy into the circumstances under which the flight was made. He is quoted as saying: "The lives of the aviators were sacrificed to help make a holiday for Boston."

A feather flying suit, believed to have been worn by young Howard, was picked up about seven miles off Cape Race and brought into Provincetown today by a fisherman. Officials expressed belief that the three aviators had discarded their heavy outer clothing in the hope of keeping afloat when their plane went down.

Mr. Howard is a Chautauqua lecturer, living in Rochester, N. Y. He is a member of the War Work Council, secretary of the International Reform Bureau and chairman of the National Committee of the Dry Federation.

"We are a family of Quakers," he explained, "but when my two boys asked me what they should do in view of our natural disinclination to fight, I replied: 'Before the Lusitania went down, boys, we were Quakers; from after we're going to be earth-Quakers.' Both of them enlisted in the aviation service."

The lost son was a senior at Amherst, specializing in international law, when he entered the service two years ago.

MISS HELEN L. ROBERTS, sixteen-year-old daughter of the Governor of Tennessee, who christened the giant warship named for that State, which was launched today at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

LARGEST OF ALL FIGHTING SHIPS LAUNCHED

New York, April 30.—The battleship Tennessee, the world's largest fighting ship, was successfully launched at the Brooklyn Navy Yard at 9:45 a. m. today.

The giant super-dreadnought left the ways as gracefully as a swan, gained momentum as she glided downward, and dipped into the East river with a tremendous splash to the roaring of hundreds of whistles from harbor craft and the cheers of the 45,000 spectators. Miss Helen Leonore Roberts, pretty sixteen-year-old daughter of Governor A. H. Roberts of Tennessee, christened the monster.

Despite the fact that Tennessee is a dry State and that both she and her father are ardent prohibitionists, champagne was used in the ceremony. She broke a bottle against the bow as the Tennessee slid off and said: "I christen thee Tennessee."

Miss Roberts stood on a little platform which had been built for the launching party. She wore a white tailor-made gown of wool with black fur around the neck, a big picture hat trimmed with white fur and white ribbon, and carried an enormous bunch of American Beauty roses. On the platform with her were her father, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, commander of the Third Naval District, and Captain A. W. Johnson, aide to the commandant, who was in charge of the launching.

The Tennessee displaces 32,500 tons and represents several innovations in warship construction. She is said to be practically unsinkable and invulnerable against torpedo attack. Her main battery will consist of twelve fourteen-inch guns in four turrets.

WARM'S LOVE FOR GIRL IN TESTIMONY

Letters of Soldier Sweetheart in Vermont Tragedy Move Jurors to Tears

St. Albans, Vt., April 30.—Miss Lucy Letteau's quivering, pathetic sobbing, as thousand kisses," from Jennie Hemmingway to Robert Warm, the soldier accused of her murder in 1917, were introduced in testimony for the defence in Warm's trial in Franklin County court here today.

There were three of the letters, all expressing the girl's love and confidence of the girl in her sweetheart and making rather pathetic plans for their future when the war was over and he was home. Their reading affected the jurors to the point of tears and was attended by unrestrained sobbing by the attorney for the State.

Three letters from the accused to the girl were introduced into court, but were excluded. Warm's counsel maintained that they would show that Jennie Hemmingway's affections were returned by the soldier, and that it was unbelievable that he could have plotted her death.

The defence is striving to establish that on the night of August 12 a crowd of young Bondsmen in army uniforms pursued Warm and the girl to the vicinity of Newton street, and there attacked Warm, leaving the young man off, and killing the girl.

Mrs. Minnie M. Philo, a witness on board at the previous trial of Warm, told of seeing such a crowd passing back of her house shortly before dusk the night the girl's body was found by the bushes on Newton street.

The last she saw of them, she said, they were running from the scene of the crime toward the railroad yards. This corroborated the theory that the road men, that a crowd of soldiers boarded a train there shortly after the murder was known to have been committed.

H. B. Bullett, janitor at St. Albans Armory, testified as to the difficulty of identifying soldiers by their uniforms at night.

Other witnesses testified to seeing the Warm girl and a man in uniform walking along Newton street the night of August 12, but could not describe the man.

"I was on my way to school about half past eight in the morning, going along Maplewood avenue," she said today. "A taxi-cab was standing in front of McMann's house. A driver was seated in front. He had a big black coat. Another man with a small mustache was standing in front of the taxicab, dressed in a black suit.

"As soon as I passed him he put his hand over my mouth and drew me into the machine. We got off at the station, and took a train for Boston, where he took me through the station with a lot of doors and many flags hanging inside.

"After going through many streets we went into a big red brick block. We've got one like in in Pittsfield. The negro elevator man took us up a couple of flights. ¶ Our lowest priced Georgette blouse for regular business is $5.75. We are offering some as good for $4.75, and there are $7.50 waists for $5.75.

¶ Of neckwear, there is an offering of an even dozen styles at special prices, beginning at 85c and not running beyond $9.75.

¶ It takes 27 sketches to illustrate the women's and misses' dresses bought for this sale—and there are some wonderful wash dresses as low as $4.00.

¶ Silk and suede bags—four of them were sketched, but the sketches were crowded out of our circular. The value isn't affected, and all four are excellent values.

¶ A half-page in our circular is necessary for the pictures and descriptions of the petticoats, which are as low as $4.00, and don't go beyond $7.50.

¶ About 10,000 pairs of women's silk stockings are here at prices which will make this look like one of our great annual sales of hosiery.

¶ Vellings and veils at half price and less are in the sale. vellings and veils of the kind that we sell the most of from day to day.

¶ We are selling for $1.65 an imported French kid glove, pique sewn, which is the equal of the glove we usually sell for $2.50. (Only 125 dozen of them could be obtained.)

¶ Jewelry is worth passing attention, for there are 12 offerings of desirable goods, all bought specially for this sale and marked at much less than the usual price.

¶ Infants and children—they are in an enlarged department, and it takes sixteen sketches to show the special values offered in this third floor (annex) shop.

¶ Coats, Capes, Suits, Skirts—a paragraph is only a paragraph, and, as the biggest savings of the whole sale are in those garments, nothing but a visit will suffice.

¶ And the Men—they are remembered, too, by about 300 pairs of pure silk stockings, so-called "irregulars" of $1.50 to $1.75 silk stockings, and hardly distinguishable from them, $1.15.

AMERICAN GIVES UP CONTROL OF FISH STORES

Proved to Public That Living Cost Could Be Reduced by Use of Sea Food

To Alden A. Mills, owner of vessels, expert on fish, and financier, is due the gratitude of all New England for his invaluable aid in the maintenance of these stores under adverse conditions.

So also should New England be grateful to those dealers of the Boston Fish Pier, who, in one way or another, aided the stores, to them officers of the Boston Board of Health whose untiring efforts in inspecting the fish safeguarded the best interests of the public; to the management of Hunter's Rockaway stores, the Diamond Market, Field's Corner, Wilson's fish market, Lynn, and others, who, by giving space in their establishments, helped the stores towards fulfilling their purpose.

SERVED EARLY AND LATE.

To William J. Dickson and the managers of the various stores is due the special thanks of the public, for these men served them early and late, and spared no efforts to handle vast quantities of fish in order that every customer might be served and satisfied.

At one time there were fifteen stores in operation. This was during the crucial period of Lent, when everyone sought fish at cost prices. Circumstances over which the American could exercise no control compelled from time to time the closing of several of these stores. Today the following stores are open:

South End—Shawmut avenue and Milford street.

Lynn — Wilson's Market, No. 88 Monroe street.

Charlestown—No. 709 Main street.

Field's Corner, Dorchester — Diamond Market, No. 1010 Dorchester avenue.

Roxbury — Dutton's Store, Ruggles and Washington street.

Worcester — No. 190 Southbridge street.

In turning over these stores, through which nearly 1,000,000 pounds of fish have been sold to the public at cost, to other hands, the American also wishes to thank the public for the way it responded to the American's campaign of education. Previous to the opening of these stores, events have shown, the average housewife had given fish but little consideration in the daily diet. The tremendous sales made through the Boston American stores, and through Mr. Mills' mail order business indicates clearly that through the columns of the American the housewife learned to extend the use of seafoods.

RUN FOR PEOPLE.

These were probably the first fish stores in New England which were run strictly for the benefit of the people. They were probably the first chain of fish stores run on business principles. They have demonstrated that modern business methods can be applied to the retail fish business and that the public will benefit. From every standpoint they have been a great educational enterprise, as well as perhaps the greatest boon in the food line which the public has had in many years.

The American has enjoyed running them. It is glad to have been able through them to render such signal services to the people of New England. And it wishes to publicly thank all those who in any way—and their names are many—contributed to the success of the stores.

The Miracle of Milk

DRINKING YOUR WAY TO HEALTH

Did you know that MILK is the greatest unpatented medicine, a truly scientific cure-all, a legitimate panacea for the conquest of more diseases that can be genuinely accredited to any other healing agent known to man? These are strong statements, but milk is a strong fluid, a life-giving, strength-building food medicine for the ailing adult as well as the helpless babe.

Suppose a friend of yours, a man whose normal weight should be 140 pounds had become a walking skeleton of 92 pounds. Suppose him to be a nervous wreck, his memory gone, his mind a nightmare of confusion, a sufferer from perpetual colds, acute gastritis, chronic and incurable constipation. Suppose he had tried every variety of medical treatment besides electricity, manipulations, diets, baths and what not, and yet continued to drag his bundled-up, starving body about while he slowly starved to death.

So he was when you saw him a few weeks ago, and now you meet him on the street, a robust picture of glowing health.

"A miracle!" you exclaim. A miracle indeed—a miracle of milk!

The case suggested a real case, the cure a real cure, under the direction of a physician who says, "If I were told I must select one method of treating disease and only one, and must discard all other methods, I would ask to be allowed to retain the use of milk diet."

This doctor tells the story of this and other equally remarkable cases in an article, "Curing Diseases with Milk," in May Physical Culture. In this article Dr. Galatian explains in detail how to take the milk diet.

The milk diet, INTELLIGENTLY used, is a cure for anaemia, constipation, indigestion and all manner of diseases of the stomach, liver, kidneys, heart, bladder, etc. Rheumatism and many other ills for which no reliable medical cures are known, are being cured today by the right use of milk, the great food-medicine.

If you or any member of your family are among those 96% of the population that systematic examination shows to be other than in perfect health, then you owe it to yourself to get the May issue of PHYSICAL CULTURE Magazine and learn from the pen of the world's most experienced physician in milk diet how to use milk. This article will surprise and amaze you. Read it by all means, and the many other interesting articles appearing in the MAY PHYSICAL CULTURE MAGAZINE—out today. 20 cents.

Babies and Adults

Of course, you know that milk is a vitally important food; that it is essential to the life and health of children; that when the milk supply runs low the infant death rate mounts appalling.

Modern food scientists speak no longer of the superiority of the beef-eating nations, but of the superiority of the milk-drinking nations. The greater efficiency of the Anglo-Saxon, the lower death rate in the cow-keeping countries of Switzerland and Holland, all these things are now explained by the superior virtues of milk as a food.

Meat contains the valuable growth and body-building proteins, but it also contains disease-producing animal wastes and toxins. Milk contains the growth and body-building proteins in an even more perfect form and is free from the disease-producing elements of meat.

ADMIRAL WOOD HOISTS FLAG ON CRUISER

Takes Formal Command of the First Division, Pacific Fleet, in Simple Ceremonies

Rear Admiral Spencer S. Wood, at 10 o'clock today, took formal command of the First Division, Pacific Fleet, when he had his flag hoisted over the old cruiser U. S. S. Chicago at the Navy Yard. The ceremonies were simple, consisting only of Rear Admiral Wood reading his orders in the presence of Rear Admiral C. S. Williams.

The new commandant of the First Naval District, Rear-Admiral Herbert O. Dunne, at 11 o'clock paid a return visit to Captain William R. Rush, commandant of the Boston Navy Yard, who was the first to visit him after he took office yesterday.

Captain Rush had a salute of thirteen guns fired in the admiral's honor. The navy yard band was on hand, and a company of United States Marines, most of them overseas veterans, was lined up in front of the administration building and presented arms as the admiral approached.

Rear-Admiral Dunne was met by Captain Rush and his staff, including Captain A. H. Watson, commander; George N. Hayward, Lieutenant Dennis J. O'Connell and Ensign R. C. Curtis.

PRISON YEOMAN WITH CASH ELUDES PURSUERS

Portsmouth, N. H., April 30.—Despite published offers of reward and descriptions sent broadcast by the Navy Department, not the slightest trace has been found of George Brownlee, chief yeoman at the Naval Prison, and known as Thomas Mott Osborne's "right-hand man," who disappeared with $2,700 in bonds and money belonging to the prisoners, and the combination of the safe that contained them. Part of the money has been restored to the prisoners by an entertainment which the prisoners gave by permission of the Secretary of the Navy and which netted $1,500.

P. O. CHAUFFEUR TAKEN FROM TOWN'S CUSTODY

A conflict in authority has arisen between the Federal authorities of this district and Brookline District Court relative to jurisdiction in the case of the arrest and fining of Postoffice Chauffeur Ralph Moore, and the case will probably be fought out in the United States Supreme Court. United States Marshal Bernard Bradley today took Moore out of the custody of the Brookline officials on a writ issued by Federal Judge Morton. Moore, who lives in Malden, was arrested for not having a license in his possession and fined $10, which Federal officials instructed him not to pay. They contend the State courts have no jurisdiction and will make a test case of the incident.

TROOPS PATROL PHONE STRIKE TOWN IN IND.

Miners Flock There to Sympathize With Striking Operators and to Sneer at Soldiers

By International News Service.

Linton, Ind., April 30.—With the coal mine manual law, five companies of State militia patrolling the streets and idle miners from this district flocking to town to express their sympathy with the strike of girl telephone operators, and openly voicing their contempt for the soldiers, who late yesterday were ordered to fire a volley over the heads of a mob which stoned the telephone building, the situation here today is considered by city officials as "inflammable."

In the meantime, four companies of militia are being held under arms at Indianapolis under orders of Adjutant H. E. Smith, ready to be rushed to this town on a special train "if needed."

Charles Fox, president of the State Federation of Labor, Louis Huessman, and Charles Greathouse of the State Employment Commission, arrived early today and are arranging a conference, at which they hope to "adjust the differences which resulted in the strike being called last Thursday."

The operators are demanding wage increases and shorter hours and other labor organizations in the district, including about 1,500 miners, are threatening a general sympathetic strike.

WANTED A BOY, BUT GOT GIRL INSTEAD

So Parents of Pianist Modified Her Name to "Dai"

The very first question I asked this young American pianist when I was introduced to her yesterday was the obvious one.

"Where did you get that name?"

Miss Buell is a very attractive little pianist. Her face is round and smiling, her eyes are bright and her hair waves around a lot. One of the most essential features of a public performer nature presented to her on a platter, an agreeable personality.

IS A HOOSIER.

"Everybody asks me where I got that name," laughed Miss Buell. "I begin to think it is one of my principal assets, but it is really quite a simple story. One of my ancestors was Sir Humphrey Davy. My parents were sure I would be a boy, and they had it all arranged to name me Davy. When I came along they modified their intention and called me Dai. Just left the "v" out. That's all there is, there isn't any more."

"And you are a regular American, not some mysterious person from the East?"

"I'm a Hoosier. I hail from Logansport, Indiana. Now I live in a bungalow out in Newton. I suppose you are not interested at all, now that you know all about me."

"But I don't know all about you. Tell me something of your hopes and ambitions."

"I hope to play the piano so well as to attract vast audiences. My ambition is to widen the appeal of the pianoforte to American audiences. When I make a program I try to place myself in the position of a member of the audience. Of course, I wouldn't play anything which was not worth playing, but I do play what I think people are sure to like.

TRIES TO PLEASE AUDIENCE.

"In the library of pianoforte music there are any number of lovely pieces which never fail to make an appeal to an audience, and of course there are a vast number whose chief merit is the opportunity they give to show other pianists and the critics the amount of technical proficiency you have attained. I don't eschew these entirely because people would say I was playing to the gallery, but I do try to find melodic numbers which are not hackneyed and which will satisfy the non-technicians in the audience. Upon my program for my May 5 recital in Jordan Hall I think I have blended these diverse elements. I hope so."

Miss Buell is a direct descendant of General Buel of Civil War fame as well as Sir Humphrey Davy. For an American girl of the middle West she has already made an impression on concert audiences which promises strong competition for some of these European piano pounders who come over here to collect American dollars.

'REDS' USING $500,000 PROPAGANDA FUND HERE

New York, April 30.—Bolshevism is gaining a firm foothold here, aided by a $500,000 propaganda fund sent from Russia, according to a statement made by Senator J. Henry Walters, president pro tempore of the New York state Senate. One of the members of the legislative committee investigating Bolshevism asserted that the first big step planned by the "Reds" was to oust Samuel Gompers and other trusted labor leaders.

R. I. CARMEN THREATEN STRIKE

Providence, April 30.—Street Carmen's Union officials want to know why the delay in paying the men some $150,000 back pay ordered originally by the War Labor Board and later sanctioned by Justice Williard S. Tanner of the Superior Court and threaten to strike on Sunday if the money is not forthcoming by that time.

"Creditors have thirty days in which to file an appeal. We don't propose to wait that long and will strike Sunday if the money is not in the pockets of the men," said Business Agent James H. Coleman of the union.

This threat by the carmen has aroused State and city officials who labored diligently to effect a release of back taxes owned by the Rhode Island Company to State, cities and towns.

As all waived their priority rights, which was sustained by Justice Tanner, the delay in paying the men is said by Coleman to have a "sinister aspect."

It is believed in State official circles that the demand of the union officials will be met before the time set to strike.

BERT FORD'S TALES OF THE YANKEE DIVISION

In Chapter XXII. of his "Tales of the Y. D." Mr. Ford shows that General Pershing is authority for the statement that the 26th Division covered longer than any other American division in France.

An army order signed by Colonel H. L. Drum, chief of staff, read:

"The Army Commander desires me to inform you that, on the recommendation of the Commander-in-Chief, the President has selected the 26th Division to lead the division he will visit on Christmas Day. This selection was made on the ground THAT THE 26TH DIVISION HAD THE LONGEST PERIOD OF SERVICE IN FRANCE."

Mr. Ford tells how Lieutenant Blake and his men of Headquarters Company of the 101st Infantry, prepared a spread for President Wilson which they had to gobble up themselves.

Today's chapter gives the names of the soldiers who composed the Yankee Division troops of entertainers and tells of their good work.

By BERT FORD.

CHAPTER XXII.

(Copyright, 1919, by the Boston American.)

During the remainder of the month of December, 1918, will live forever in the memories of the men of the Yankee Division, for on that day President Wilson, reviewed 10,000 of the 26th American troops from the 101st Infantry, formerly a football star at Harvard, decided to prepare a banquet fit for the chief executive of the nation. "Billy" coached the company cook and laid in special dishes.

Color Sergeant Eddie Creed, son of Judge Creed of the Boston Municipal Court, polished up his oratory. He was selected to welcome President Wilson on behalf of the doughboys.

Eddie was called the "silver-tongued orator of the Yankee Division," because he was sent back to the States to speak in the Liberty Loan campaign and returned. He proved a whirlwind from all accounts. He entertained the gang for months with his experiences as a Liberty Loan stumper.

Sergt. Jimmy Loughlin, whom I met away up front during the final hours of fighting, had his hair cut for the occasion, and Sergt.-Major Jesse Gilbody, a journalist in civil life, paid a buck private two francs to polish his hob-nailed boots and borrowed Lieut. Parker Healey's best breeches. He wanted Sergt. Dorsa S. Lyons' tunic, but Dorsa calculated he'd sort of slick up himself.

The table groaned under the weight of good things and Eddie Creed kept rehearsing all the Daniel Webster passages he could think of and the recaption line was agreed upon and—

President Wilson did not eat with them at all. He changed his plans at the eleventh hour. Eddie Creed vows he'll pickle his speech until the body runs for Congress.

Sergeant Creed was eulogizing some of his comrades one day. He said the chaplains and officers all agreed that no one man in the division did more to bolster up the morale of the troops than his running-mate, Color-Sergeant William Cossery, son of former Mayor Cossery of Lynn. Sergeant Cossery was the kingpin entertainer of the Yankee Division.

Creed told also how Sergeant-Major Gilbody, of Dorchester, whose duties as regimental clerk should have kept him at regimental post of command, had taken part in several raids with rifle and grenades. George wears a wound stripe. He was gassed one night, but recovered. Creed's suite."

Lieutenant Blake, who made good and who had repeatedly exhibited a courage that everyone knew he possessed, interrupted Creed's conversation, saying:

SERGT. CREED BASHFUL.

"Eddie is too bashful to talk about himself. One time a bunch of our fellows were cut off. They were in a hazardous position and in need of food. Volunteers were called for. Sergeant Creed agreed to lead a relief squad and he did. Several of the squad were wounded by a fusillade of machine gun bullets but Eddie turned the trick. He was always there on the show down."

I heard just as nice things about Sergeant Jimmy Loughlin, Lieutenant Healey of Charlestown, and others.

Bandmaster Edward M. l'Africain of the 101st Infantry, cornet soloist in the Boston Symphony Orchestra, developed what was looked upon as the best band in the A. E. F.

He had the distinction of leading the massed band of the division when General Pershing held his final review of the Twenty-fifth in the Recouvrey area.

Every division had its troupe of entertainers some of whom became so clever that they gave performances before other divisions. The 27th Division of New York, had an all-professional cast which played before King George and made a hit with the Tommies while the division with the Thirtieth, composed of troops from the Carolinas and Tennessee, were preparing for their powerful attack with the Australians against the Hindenburg line.

Many of the doughboys acquired skill as female impersonators. There were rivals of the late Julian Eltinge galore and some were so coquettish and logged out so bewitchingly that the officers flirted with them. Lieut. John P. King, author and actor of Augusta, Ga. and New York, had charge of the Yankee Division performers and he recruited a versatile crew. They organized June 28, 1918, and were the "oldest theatrical troupe in the A. E. F." as programs cited.

"The opening performance was given during a no air raid in Toul, in the presence of a capacity audience in which sat one corps and four divisional commanders. They played under weird and strenuous circumstances at times, in schools and stables and in the open, when weather permitted, using a canvas flooring for a stage.

"The Follies of the A. E. F." was the title of the production and it was a scream. The stage manager and organizer of the show was First Class Private John J. Chaisson, K Company, 103d Infantry. There was a ten-piece jazz orchestra directed by Musician Alphons A. Walker, 103d Field Artillery.

The musical specialties were—Private Frank Depierro, M Company, 104th Infantry, jazz whistler; First Class Private Stuart Chapin, Princeton '19, Battery A, 101st Artillery, trick banjo soloist; quartet—Corporal P. J. Cuff, Jr., Battery E, 101st Artillery; Private James F. McEntee, A Company, 101st Infantry, Charles H. Bissett, Battery E, 101st Artillery, and Allen R. Talbby, Battery A, 101st Artillery. Talbby sang ragos.

Acrobatic stunts were done by First-Class Private Arthur Grossman, Supply Company, 101st Artillery, Private Leo A. Connolly, F Company, 101st Infantry, and Wagoner Alfred J. Lefrevis, Supply Company, 101st Artillery.

IMPERSONATED ELSIE JANIS.

Bugler Arthur L. Park, B Company, 102d Infantry, did a clown sketch. First-Class Private George L. McGilvery, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, impersonated Elsie Janis in tip-top fashion and did a "parlor dance" with Private Richard A. Dana of Headquarters Troop. After a lightning change McGilvey did a snappy "hoola-hoola," which always brought down the house.

Corporals Alfred Pagnin, B Company, 101st Supply Train, and Edward A. Clear, Headquarters Company, 103d Infantry, known as "The Fuzzy-Footing Corporals," did a clog dance. A comedy sketch, including a Jew dialogue, was put on by Privates Phillip A. Gero, Jr., Battery B, 101st Artillery, and John J. Lane, of the same battery.

Private Victor Rattman, a professional movie actor, did a song and comedy act. Private James F. McEntee made an excellent Irish comedian. Private James Jacobson, B Company, 101st Engineers, impersonated a negro comedian.

Jacobson had a dialogue with Corporal Ira T. Webster, of Battery A, 101st Artillery. First-Class Private Royal K. Hayes of Battery A, 101st Artillery, recited poems which he composed himself and they were popular with the doughboys. Private John Elliott, 101st Ambulance Company, Engineers, impersonated a negro comedian.

The stage hands were Corporal Leon L. Burdick, Supply Company, 102d Artillery; Private John W. Durkee, Company A, 101st Engineers; Private Clarence T. Osgood, Company F, 101st Engineers; Wagoner Cable Salter and Corporal Edward E. Perkins of the 101st Engineers.

HAD JAZZ ORCHESTRA.

The members of the jazz orchestra were Sergeant Thayer Kingsley, Corporal Chester L. Kingsley and Corporal Frederick M. Kingsley, all of A Company, 101st Engineers; Private Earl D. Cummings, Battery A, 102nd Artillery; Private Charles S. Temple, Battery A, 101st Artillery; Private Robert L. Hoag, Battery A, 102d Artillery, and First Class Private Albert Smith, Battery A, 101st Artillery.

Lieutenant King wrote:

The show ended with a comedy sketch called "Sherman Said It," by First Class Private John J. Chaisson, in which Philip A. Gero and James F. McEntee took the principal parts, and it really was a riot."

WOULD CHANGE FEEDING PLAN AT DEBARKATION

Plans to improve the facilities of Boston as a debarkation port for troops were discussed at a conference of officers today at army headquarters.

Colonel Albert S. Williams, who returned today after examining the methods of debarkation at Hoboken, N. J., made his report. "They have at this port of debarkation a steam kitchen which is capable of feeding 20,000 men a day as they debark from transports," said the colonel. "It is a great affairs and well worth imitating on a smaller scale in Boston."

LONGEST SERVICE.

Announcement of the selection of the Yankee Division to occupy the place in the parade was made in the following letter which announced officially that "the 26th Division had the longest period of service in France," bearing out what I had stated in earlier dispatches:

Headquarters First Army,
American Expeditionary Forces,
France, Dec. 20, 1918.

From: Chief of Staff, First Army, A. E. F.
To: Commanding General, 26th Division, A. E. F.
Subject: Visit of President of the United States.

1. The Army Commander desires me to inform you that, on the recommendation of the Commander-in-Chief, the President has selected the 26th Division as being the division he will visit on Christmas Day. This selection was made on the ground that the 26th Division had the longest period of service in France.

2. The Army Commander desires that you be present at the Presidential review at Humes, which is to start at 9:30 a. m. on December 25, 1918, so as you may conduct the President on the review ground to such troops in your area as he may desire to visit. The Army Commander desires me to say that all organizations in the area should be prepared for this visit, billets properly policed and men lined up outside of same awaiting the arrival of the President. He also desires that the non-commissioned officers in charge of quarters be ready and on the alert to precede the President and the Commander-in-Chief into such billets as they may desire to inspect.

3. The President has expressed a desire to eat Christmas dinner with the men, and to that end it is directed that you select some organization which the President and his party can visit at dinner time and eat the soldiers' dinner with the men. In the party it is estimated that there will be somewhere in the neighborhood of forty persons.

H. A. DRUM,
Chief of Staff.

PRAISED BY PERSHING.

The detachment from the Yankee Division made such a good showing Christmas Day that General Pershing sent this congratulatory telegram:

Headquarters 26th Division,
American Expeditionary Forces
France, Dec. 29, 1918.

General Order—No. 131.

The following telegram is published for the information of the command:

G. H. Q., Dec. 26, 1918.

O. G. 26th Division.

"I desire to congratulate the division on the excellent work of the battalion which represented it as the guard of honor at Chaumont, on the fine appearance and discipline manifested by the men during the visit of the President of the United States to the billets of the division and on the splendid appearance made by the detachments representing the division in the review for the President at Humes, France, December 25, 1918.

PERSHING."

By command of Major-General Hale:

MEN'S Filene's SHOPS

Second chapter of "Bert Ford's" story of one pair of Filene shoes!

THE FIRST CHAPTER, you will remember, took place down on the Mexican border when Bert Ford wore, all through that campaign for six long months, one pair of $5 shoes bought in the Filene men's shoe shops, and for which he paid but $5.

confirmed report by wire stumbled on the Logan reinstatement sending you, via parcel post, a pair of my old war shoes which have a history. I wore them six months on the Mexican border; put them aside; ran into them when I was packing to come over; had them tapped by a French cobbler in Meaux. Wore them as bad weather shoes all through the summer and up to the winter months. They never broke till toward fall and then in the back straps due to friction from puttees. They were a slick Russian calf and cost me $5 in 1916 at Filene's. Think of it! One pair Bug shoes for $5 which will last two campaigns are some "kicks". They braved the mud of every American battlefield, and in addition there in Belgium and on the British front. They still carry the mud of some closing fights in the Argonne. Best wishes.
Bert Ford.

The first chapter was written up by us after Mr. Ford returned from Mexico. After six months of hard wear. And the shoes were still good! Six months of army correspondent's life, jumping from pillar to post. We never expected anything more from that pair of shoes, yet listen!

Mr. Ford has just returned from Europe. Just before he arrived a package came and with it a letter. The letter was to a friend at the Boston American. The package contained the same pair of Filene $5 shoes.

What does Mr. Ford say this time: "I wore these shoes six months on the Mexican border. Ran into them when I was packing to come over; had them tapped by a French cobbler in Meaux. Wore them as bad weather shoes all through the summer and up to the winter months. They never broke till toward fall and then in the back straps due to friction from puttees. They were a slick Russian calf and cost $5 in 1916 at Filene's. Think of it! One pair Bug shoes for $5 which will last two campaigns are some 'kicks.'"

"This pair of Filene shoes braved the mud of every American battlefield, and in addition those in Belgium and the British front. They still carry the mud of the closing fights in the Argonne." In our window now!

WHAT IS THE MORAL? Simply this. The Filene men's shoe shops sold long-wearing shoes in 1917. THEY STILL SELL THEM AND HAVE PLENTY OF THEM.

Returning soldiers will do well to think about Mr. Ford's pair of Filene kicks. They will do well to give us a look before they buy. Shoes cost more to be sure, but not such an awful lot more here.

Lift Corns Out! Doesn't Hurt!

Few drops stop corn soreness, then corns lift right off with fingers—No pain!—Magic!

For a few cents you can get a small bottle of the magic freezone discovered by a Cincinnati chemist.

Just ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone. Apply a few drops upon a tender, aching corn and instantly that old bothersome corn stops hurting, then shortly you can lift it out, root and all, with the fingers.

Just think! Not one bit of pain before applying freezone or afterwards. It doesn't even irritate the surrounding skin.

Hard corns, soft corns, or corns between the toes, also hardened calluses on bottom of feet shrivel up and fall off without hurting a particle. Ladies! Keep freezone handy on your dresser. Wonderful!

HISTORY of the YANKEE DIVISION

By HARRY A. BENVELL

This is the thirty-first instalment of the "History of the Yankee Division," which began in the Sunday Advertiser-American on March 30.

Copyright, 1919, by New England Publishing Company.

With blaring of bands the review then took place, the long columns swinging by in company front. The men plowed doggedly through the mud, and in a short time had all passed the reviewing stand.

The President and his party then re-entered automobiles and proceeded to Montigny-le-Roi, where the Yankee Division was anxiously awaiting them.

The dinner had been prepared under the direction of Mess Sergeant Herbert A. Hoey, a former Worcester, Mass., restaurant proprietor. He was assisted by Sergeant Paul Dufourd, a Boston restaurateur. The two men had secured chickens, turkeys with dressing, cauliflower and mashed potato, with cranberry sauce and pumpkin pies. It had been a tremendous task to gather together enough turkeys, to say nothing of plates, chairs and tables, but it was done.

The menus were gotten up by the topographical section of the Intelligence department of the division, and contained eight pages. On the front page was the famous "Y. D." with a skeleton. On the inside cover was the title page, headed by an American eagle perched upon a shield, over which swords were crossed. Under this was printed:

"Memento, Christmas Dinner for President Wilson, by officers of the 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces, Montigny-le-Roi, France, December twenty-fifth, nineteen hundred and eighteen. Printed in the field by Headquarters 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces."

This last sentence was at the bottom of the page and was flanked by two more shields, the whole page being done in colors.

Other pages were bordered with war sketches, while the fourth and sixth contained brief histories of the battles and service of the 26th.

The main ambition of the New Englanders at that time was deftly set forth upon the back cover by the reproduction of a steamship plowing the Atlantic and headed for the United States.

As the presidential party entered the old school and former hospital in which the dinner was given, the band of the 102d Infantry outside gave ruffles and then played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The party took their seats, and, despite the fact that there were no napery nor silverware, the meal was thoroughly enjoyed. There was no speaking. As soon as the dinner was finished the President left, merely waving his hand and shouting "Good-by" to the thousands of villagers and soldiers clustered outside. He then entered his automobile and drove to some billets occupied by the 103d Infantry, which were on the road to Chaumont. Two or three of these the President inspected, and in one occurred an incident that brought many smiles to the soldiers for some time afterward.

On each man's bunk was laid out his equipment, with each article in a certain place, as prescribed by regulations. Noticing a jointed stick the President called it to the attention of General Pershing. The latter picked up the stick, and, straightening it out, explained that it was one of the poles for a "pup" tent, so called—the little two-man tents which are carried on the march. After examining it the President handed the pole back to General Pershing, who tossed it carelessly on to the bunk. "But," said President Wilson, "suppose that man's bunk is inspected again. He would get into trouble with that pole lying like that. As your commanding officer I order you to replace the pole the way it should be." General Pershing snapped to attention, saluted and replaced the pole in its proper position.

This billet was on the second floor of a French stable, and in order to enter it the President was forced to ascend a ladder. While engaged in this more or less awkward feat he was stopped again and again by moving picture operators and photographers.

In another billet the President started to relate a story to a squad of men who were standing rigidly at attention. Although the commander-in-chief put all his personality into the tale, it apparently had no effect on the soldiers, who continued to stare straight ahead. At last the chief executive of the United States stopped talking, considered a moment and then said: "I don't know what command to give you to make you do it, but I wish you would all relax a minute and look as though you were interested in the story."

Promptly the corporal stepped forward one pace, faced smartly to the left, commanded "At ease!" and the thing was done.

CHAPTER XXXII.

The visitors then went on their way to Chaumont, while the remainder of the division proceeded to enjoy their own Christmas dinners.

Later a telegram was received from General Pershing by General Hale, which read:

"I desire to congratulate the division on the excellent work of the battalion which represented it as guard of honor at Chaumont on the fine appearance and discipline manifested by the men during the visit of the President of the United States to the billets of the division, and on the splendid appearance made by the detachments representing the division in the review for the President at Humes, France, Dec. 25, 1918."

MESSAGE FROM EDWARDS.

On December 30 the division was delighted to receive a message from their former commander, General Edwards. This message appeared in General Orders No. 122, issued by General Hale, which read:

"1—The following cablegram from Major-General Clarence R. Edwards is published to the command.

"'Major-General H. C. Hale, 26th Division.

"'Delighted you have the division. My congratulations. Give my love to the officers and lads and tell them to carry on. We are all waiting to welcome you.

"'EDWARDS.'"

In the same order General Hale published a commendation from the corps commander of the conduct of the men while on leave. It read:

"1—The corps commander desires to express his sincere commendation of the high standards of conduct and soldierly pride manifested by the members of the 26th Division during their presence in the Auvergne leave area. Their behavior was such as to attract the favorable notice of the commanding officer of that area, and he was so highly impressed that he has communicated his sentiments as a complimentary letter with reference thereto. The members of this leave detachment reflected credit upon the division, the corps and the American Army, and have established a standard worthy of emulation by all who succeed them.

"3—It is especially desired to command Captain William Walker, 101d Infantry, in charge of the leave train, who displayed fine soldierly qualities, marked ability and earnest loyalty in the performance of all his duties. His leadership in retaining full control of his men under all circumstances is a high tribute to his efficiency.

"C. P. SUMMERALL,
"Major-General, Commanding.

"By command of Major-General Hale.

"CASSIUS M. DOWELL,
"Acting Chief of Staff."

Following the inspection of the division, and the decoration of the battalion of the 102d by General Petain, previously described by Lieutenant-Colonel Horsey, the next event of importance in the New Englanders was the order to move to the Le Mans area of the American embarkation centre. This order was received with the greatest joy, as every member of the division, New Englander or otherwise, was anxious to get back home as soon as possible. They were weary of the inaction and longed for peaceful pursuits. They had come across willingly to do their share in the war, and had done it in a way that brought compliments and decorations from the greatest soldiers in the French army. Now they wanted to get back to their homes and families and forget, if possible, what they had gone through. The personnel of the division was greatly changed. Of the original Guard officers who went over with the 26th, less than a handful remained. The following order issued to the transportation officers at this time will show how many changes had taken place:

7 CARLOADS AROOSTOOK SEED FOR CONNECTICUT

Presque Isle, Me., April 29.—Seven carloads of seed potatoes have just been shipped to New Haven parties, as a result of a trip made through Aroostook last Fall by Raymon Clapp, agricultural agent, for the First National Bank of New Haven; A. N. Farnham, a prominent fruit and vegetable grower, and L. F. Harvey, the New England county agent. These men wanted to see for themselves what Aroostook had to offer in the line of seed stock. John L. Scribner, the University of Maine extension agent for Aroostook County, conducted them through the fields of potatoes and the large potato warehouses, convincing them of the high quality of the local product.

Washington Headquarters Soldiers' Service Bureau, April 30.—Officials of the War Department estimate that more than 100,000 American soldiers who are entitled to the $60 bonus have failed to forward their applications to Washington. Up to date more than 1,084,412 soldiers have received their $60 checks.

Applications for bonus are now reaching Washington in very much reduced numbers, averaging not more than 2,500 a day. During the past week checks were mailed out at the rate of 45,000 or 50,000 a day.

In all cases where discharged soldiers are in doubt as to whether they are entitled to the bonus it is suggested that they communicate directly with the zone finance officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C., submitting a brief statement of the facts involved.

Soldiers entitled to the bonus who, for any reason have not yet forwarded their applications to Washington, are requested to do so at their earliest convenience. Immediate attention to their applications is assured.

FEAR MAY DAY LABOR CLASHES IN EUROPE

By International News Service.

Paris, April 30.—The gravest apprehensions are felt throughout Europe today regarding the possibility of bloody disturbances tomorrow—May Day.

From Italy, Germany, Belgium, Austria and Hungary reports have been flowing into Paris during the past week foreshadowing demonstrations by the working classes, who claim to have been more severely stricken in all respects by the war than any other class.

The troops and police of the continent are being held in the leash, to be ordered out at the slightest sign of Bolshevik uprisings.

In the industrial north of Italy, Socialists have been extremely active throughout the whole of this month. Milan and Turin both fear disorders. The war has hit Italy economically with worse effect than that suffered by any other great power as far as I can learn. The consequent sufferings of the working class have rendered the work of the agitators easy.

All over the continent the workers have declared a general holiday for tomorrow.

Although in France the Socialists are still seething over the acquittal of Villain, who shot their great leader, Jaurès, the workers are expected to pass the day in peaceful demonstrations.

COLONEL JOHN F. J. HERBERT.

Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, commander of the 102d Field Artillery, is a widely known and loved newspaper man. He was born and bred in Worcester, and obtained his education in the public schools of that city, graduating from Classical High School and being captain of the champion high school football team of the State of that period. He was a member of Wachusett Club eight-oar crew when it won a world's championship.

"Jack" Herbert, as he is known to friends, was always a lover of things military. He was elected first lieutenant of Battery B, First Battalion, Massachusetts Field Artillery, May 18, 1904, and captain and adjutant of the same battalion on January 25, 1915. On March 10 of the same year he was elected captain of the same outfit after reorganizing it. He commanded it when it went to the Mexican border from June 19 to October 4, 1916. On June 28, 1917, he was elected major of the 2d Regiment, Massachusetts Field Artillery.

On July 25, 1917, he entered the United States army as major of his organization, which became the 102d United States Field Artillery, with this outfit he left for France September 22, 1917. On June 28, 1918, he was commissioned lieutenant-colonel, being promoted for valiant service and leadership during the famous Chateau Thierry engagement. He became colonel of the 102d United States Field Artillery February 22, 1919, in the field.

His military training includes attendance at the army field artillery schools at Fort Riley, Kan., in 1910 and 1911, and at Tobyhanna, Pa., in 1915. He graduated from the army school of fire, Fort Sill, Okla., in 1912, leading the class of picked national guard artillery officers.

SAYS McADOO'S BROTHER GOT $40,000 FEE

New York, April 30.—Elihu B. Frost of No. 270 Park avenue testified before Chancellor Lane in Chancery Court, Newark, that Henry R. Carse, trustee of the Electric Boat Company, told him he had given $40,000 to Malcolm Ross McAdoo, brother of William G. McAdoo, then Secretary of the Treasury.

Frost is suing to have Carse removed as trustee of the Electric Boat Company. Besides his trusteeship Carse is connected with the Hanover National Bank and is president of the Submarine Boat Corporation.

Frost charges that Carse is working in the interests of the Submarine Boat Corporation and not Electric Boat Company, and that he is diverting business of the latter company to the former.

Regarding the $40,000 Frost says Carse told him was paid to Ross McAdoo, consulting engineer at that time in Washington for the purpose of securing submarine contracts from the government, he testified.

"I said to Carse, 'That is a h—l of a fee to give a man who has never seen a submarine.'

"Carse then said, 'Fifteen thousand dollars goes to him to relieve him of some judgments. Twenty-five thousand dollars goes to the brother.'"

Frost declares he then said:

"Carse, that's damned bribery," and that Carse replied, "That's all right. I have confused the transaction."

Frost declared the item did not appear on the company's books until eight months afterward.

He then told how later relations between Carse and Ross McAdoo became strained, and that Carse told him he thought McAdoo was "going over to the opposition" and called him "disagreeable."

Frost went on to tell the inside story of how Electric Boat stock jumped from $8 to $340 a share as a result of the war. The company which had been "on the verge of bankruptcy" overnight leaped to "easy street."

Henry R. Carse could not be reached at his home in Rye, N. Y. His wife said he was in the city, but she did not know where. Last December Carse issued a flat denial of Frost's charges, which were filed at that time in connection with the action which was heard yesterday.

Carse said at that time that he was not worried by the charges made by Frost, whom "he found it expedient to get rid of" something like two years ago. He said:

"There has been nothing improper in any act of mine that had to do with the management of the company. Whatever was done is done every day and quite properly."

"Malcolm Ross McAdoo is a consulting engineer living at No. 429 West One Hundred and Fifteenth street. He was seriously ill. He could not see reporters, but his wife carried their questions to him. He replied that he was "too ill to discuss business matters."

At the time the charges were first made by Frost, officials of the Navy Department denied that Ross McAdoo received any contracts for submarines.

GIRL BADLY INJURED BY LAWRENCE RIOTERS

Lawrence, April 30.—A Massachusetts Northeastern Railway car, bound for Haverhill, was stoned by alleged strikers as the car was turning the corner of Elm and Short streets. Miss Ruth Nowell, eighteen, of No. 69 Howe street, Methuen, an employe of a downtown shoe repair shop, was probably severely injured by a large stone which struck her on the forehead, rupturing a blood vessel.

The attack was evidently well planned on the part of the crowd of men who showered the car with stones, breaking nearly all the windows on one side.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat, also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

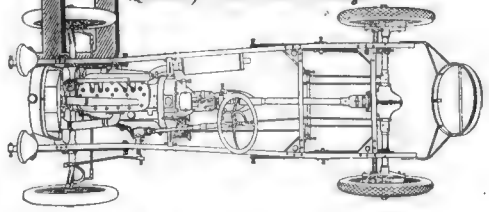
DORT
Quality Goes Clear Through



The Easy-Riding Balance

It is acknowledged that cantilever springs are the easy-riding form of suspension for cars of comparatively short wheelbase.

Yet there is an individuality in Dort's manner of traversing rough roads. It has a difference in its easy swing and freedom from "kick-up" in the tonneau.

There are two contributing factors to this difference. One is in the proper size, weight and hanging of the springs themselves. The other is in the proper distribution of body weight.

The Dort "hangs right." Its balance is at the correct place to obviate disagreeable throw from either the front or rear springs.

The very best test of Dort riding qualities is at your disposal. Ask us to drive you fast over rough roads. Convince yourself by a demonstration, gladly given.

STEEL COMMON LED MARKET DOWNWARD

Showed About 4 Points Loss After Steady Decline From Opening

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York in the afternoon, prices ruling at the lowest for the day. After a decline of 1, U. S. Steel led the market downward. It was another very active session, transactions being far in excess of a million shares sold. While they failed to hold all gains, a few rubber issues and General Motors were showing some strength. After midday, steels, oils, equipments, rails and coppers were quoted lower. Declines ranged from fractions to more than five points. Atlantic Gulf had sustained the heaviest loss. All shipping issues receded a point or more. The call rate ranged from 6% to 6% per cent.

LARGEST AFTERNOON DECLINES.

Among the largest declines in New York in the afternoon were U. S. Steel, 3¾, at 97¼, after selling at 99¾ at the opening; Republic, 2¾, at 80¾; Bethlehem B, 2¼ at 72¾; Crucible, 2¾ at 69¼; Atlantic Gulf, 4¼ at 146¾; Marine common, 2¾ at 46, preferred, 1¼ at 118¾; Mexican Petroleum, 3¼ at 173½; Texas Co., 2¼ at 222; Royal Dutch, 3¼ at 106, new 3¾ at 106¾; Industrial Alcohol, 2¾ at 100; Southern Pacific, 1¼ at 108¾; Kansas City Southern, 1¼ at 21½; International Paper, 4 at 49; Corn Products, ¾ at 61; Car and Foundry, 1¾ at 83¾; Baldwin, 2¼ at 93¾; and American Locomotive, 2¾ at 73¾.

Going included U. S. Rubber, 3¾ at 91¾, and Sumatra, 5 at 110.

A few issues showed strength in the morning. General Motors and Keystone Tire sold at higher prices since listed on the New York exchange. Willys Overland reached a high for the year, while U. S. Rubber, American Steel Foundries and American Agricultural Chemical attained highest record prices.

Early trading in U. S. Steel was exciting, according to New York dispatches. The interest of traders was inconsistent, but quite active in the few minutes. In describing the opening, it was said: "There was an immense crowd of would-be sellers at the post, nearly all having selling orders in large blocks. As soon as these rounded sales were made, from 98¾ to 99, a drop of nearly two points from yesterday's closing figure."

SENTIMENT MORE BEARISH.

The decision of the U. S. Steel directorate not to make any extra distribution to stockholders may have been discounted by professional traders, but was evidently a disappointment to the public, for buying orders decreased in volume. This was also a lower prices at the opening of the market showed that the supply of stocks overwhelmed demand. Sentiment was more bearish in all quarters. Reports as to the Italian situation were rather discouraging, and the passing of the extra Steel dividend spoke plainly of the dullness of the country's greatest industry. Profit-taking recently has been of such magnitude that prices have been maintained only through remarkable buying by cash speculators. No strong interests were reported as buying stocks. It was said that the operations in that direction were only a cloak for wholesale distribution of holdings. Bears have been waiting for such a reaction is not only inevitable but overdue. The short interests is said to have been greatly curtailed within a week, but to be still large. The situation may be affected more for a few days by technical conditions than it has been for some time. Perhaps the time has arrived when caution will be more of an influence in speculation than confidence, as many people believe that the bull movement is far from its end.

BOSTON MARKET OPENS STEADY.

In Boston the market opened steady and early trading was active, if measured by the recent standard. Prices were irregular, with Utah Copper and United Shoe getting the most attention. Fairbanks soon sold at its record highest and United Shoe at its highest for the year. Food stocks were higher, but trading in them was not active. It was said that the operations in that direction were only a cloak for wholesale distribution of holdings. Bears have been waiting for a reaction is not only inevitable but overdue. EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN APRIL 30, 1919. BOSTON.

The Boston American's Five Cent Fish Stores Have Shown New England That a Great Industry Is Being Destroyed by Profiteers

A two months' experiment in the retail fish business has enabled the Boston American to demonstrate that the high price of fish is due to the rapacity of wholesale and retail dealers.

Their profiteering threatens to drive the valuable fishing industry of the port of Boston into the eager New York market.

The short-sighted dealers are sawing off the very limb of the business tree from which they are now plucking undue profits at the expense of the public.

The experiment conducted by the Boston American was to determine the cost at which fish could be sold at retail without profit. If fish-at-cost could be marketed at prices much under the current retail quotations, then an excessive margin of profit could be proved against the dealers.

For several months the government and economic authorities in general had been urging increased consumption of fish in order to reduce the consumption of meat and to help win the war.

The value of fish as food was emphasized from economic as well as patriotic grounds.

The public, only too willing to develop any new field of cheaper sustenance, found, however, that prices were prohibitive and increasing.

Complaints of high prices brought immediate defence from the dealers that they were not to blame, that the basic cost of fish was so high that the prices to the consumer had to be high to allow a "living profit."

The situation resolved itself down to the simple question whether or not fish could be sold cheaper and allow a reasonable margin of profit.

The Boston American believed that fish could be sold cheaper, much cheaper. This point has been demonstrated.

But the American had to go into the fish business to do it. It set up a chain of stores at which fish was sold at a basic retail price of FIVE CENTS PER POUND. In some of the stores, outside of the Greater Boston area, an extra cent per pound was charged to cover the additional cost of transportation.

THESE BOSTON AMERICAN FISH STORES WERE NOT RUN FOR PROFIT OR AT ANY PROFIT. THEY MERELY "BROKE EVEN." THIS WAS SELLING "FISH-AT-COST" AND NOTHING MORE. THE DEALER IS ENTITLED TO REASONABLE PROFIT. BUT THE HIGH RATE OF PRICES CHARGED THE UNHAPPY CONSUMER BY THE REGULAR DEALERS IS TOO FAR BEYOND THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S "FISH-AT-COST" RATE OF FIVE CENTS A POUND TO CONSTITUTE "REASONABLE PROFIT." IT IS SHEER PROFITEERING, GREEDY AND INEXCUSABLE.

The first fish stores in the experimental chain of the American were opened on February 28 in South Boston, the South End, Cambridge and Charlestown.

At that time the retail prices per pound charged by regular fish dealers ranged as follows: Haddock, 12 to 15 cents; steak cod, 20 cents; Boston bluefish, 15 to 22 cents; mackerel, 25 to 45 cents; salmon, 35 to 50 cents; others high in proportion.

The quick success of the first stores opened by the American warranted the early opening of other stores in Roxbury, Lynn, Everett, Lawrence, Lowell, Nashua, N. H., Haverhill, East Boston, Worcester and Dorchester. At one time there were fifteen of these stores in operation.

The response from the public was immediate. The argument of fish at five cents a pound was irresistible. The financial saving to hundreds of families of limited means was one of the most gratifying results of the experiment. The informal thanks of customers at the stores and the more formal expressions of appreciation through many commendatory letters told their own story.

A few of the American stores were compelled to close on account of unsuitable location, changes in ownership of property and similar reasons not directly connected with the conduct of a retail fish store.

The effect upon the regular or old-established retail fish business in places where a Boston American store was located was marked. As soon as the American set up business in any of its chain-store locations the retail price of fish fell. It was equally pertinent to note that, wherever any American fish store closed, the retail prices of other neighborhood dealers immediately went up to the former high level.

Independent chain stores, which were best able to compete with Boston American prices, dropped their price on haddock to five cents per pound.

Rents paid by the Boston American stores ran as high as the average retail store rents. The payroll exceeded that of similar chains of stores. The fish which the American sold was bought in the regular way at dealers' own prices. Any retail dealer could have done the same thing as the American did, so far as selling fish at cost is concerned. Any regular dealer could add a proper margin of profit and still sell far under the present high prices.

The American conducted its experiment on a large enough scale and for a long enough time to make the experiment general and not an isolated case.

During the first seven weeks of their existence the American stores distributed approximately five hundred thousand pounds of fish at retail. Every fish sold represented a real saving to the public.

The Boston American, having demonstrated that "fish-at-cost" could be brought down to five cents a pound and having shown that exorbitant profits are being taken by the regular dealers, has closed its experiment. It has gone out of the retail fish business.

There is a grave lesson for Boston and all New England in this two months' experiment. This lesson is financial, commercial and economic.

The fish business of Boston is a splendid commercial and financial asset. It is capable of even greater possibilities, if the public is encouraged by reasonable prices to increase its consumption of fish.

It is possible to extend the "fish day" status of Friday to other days of the week, stabilizing the trade conditions, while increasing the business.

But the dealers are killing the Boston and New England fish industry by their high prices, which restrict consumption, and by the wholesalers' manipulation of fish in cold storage.

Instead of a steady market at reasonable prices the fishing trawlers find an uncertain market in Boston, with wholesalers and retailers reaping illicit profits. Some trawlers already take their fish fares to New York. Others will follow if the Boston field is controlled and run exclusively for a powerful and privileged few.

In the fish-at-cost stores conducted by the Boston American is a demonstration of unrighteous profit-taking by the established "fish interests."

In the continuance of this evil is a menace to a fishing industry that Boston cannot afford to lose.

Keen Interest in Mothers' Bill

Today a bill in the interest of mothers and prospective mothers comes up for action in the State Senate. The eyes of the entire Commonwealth are turned on that body to see what disposal of the measure will be made. Interest is the keener, because the Legislature has already made an attempt to evade the issue.

The bill calls for an appropriation of $50,000 to provide obstetrical care for mothers unable to secure it for themselves. A former draft was referred by the Committee on Social Welfare to the next General Court, and was subsequently tabled in the Senate. Today a redraft is submitted. What will the Senate do with it?

There is no question as to the expediency of such a bill. It is to the interest of the State no less than of the mothers. It insures the health of future citizens. It asks no more for human beings than certain animal welfare societies are doing for dumb beasts. Out in Colorado, where a fight for a similar measure was carried on, the slogan was:

"Horses' rights for women!"

Shall Massachusetts women have horses' rights?

Gentlemen of the Senate, what do you say?

Making It Hot for Him

Ye TOWN GOSSIP

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By K. C. B.

SIX YEARS ago.
WHERE I used to live.
I HAD a lawn.
AND FIFTY feet of hose.
AND EVERY night.
AS SOON as I'd reach home.
I'D GET out the hose.
AND ATTACH it to the faucet.
AND FOR an hour.
I'D STAND out there.
AND WATER the grass.
UNTIL EVERY blade.
WAS GLISTENING green.
AND ON all our street.
THERE WASN'T a lawn.
THAT WAS half so grand.
AND THEN one day.
IT CAME my time.
TO GET up and go.
TO ANOTHER town.
AND WE picked the things.
THAT WE were to pack.
AND TO take along.
AND THEY didn't include.
THE GARDEN hose.
TILL JUST at the last.
WHEN I grabbed it up.
FROM THE basement floor.
AND TOOK it upstairs.
AND PUT it away.
IN THE depths of a trunk.
AND IT rested there.
FOR A month or two.
IN A big hotel.
IN OUR new home town.
AND WE moved to a flat.
AND THE hose moved, too.
AND I hung it up.
ON A closet peg.
AND INSPECTED it.
EVERY LITTLE while.
AND PROMISED it.
THAT I had a hope.
THE TIME would come.
WHEN IT and I.
MIGHT WORK again.
ON ANOTHER lawn.
AND WE moved again.
AND THE trail we took.
LED CLEAR across.
FROM THE western sea.
TO THE eastern sea.
AND DEEP in a trunk.
IN A baggage car.
CAME THE garden hose.
AND FOR three years past.
IT'S BEEN hanging up.
ON ANOTHER peg.
IN A closet place.
WHERE THE sun never shines.
AND NO light comes in.
AND IT'S Spring again.
AND WE'RE going to move.
TO WHERE there is grass.
AND FLOWER beds.
AND JUST yesterday.
I TOOK down the hose.
TO TELL it the news.
AND I found it dead.
AND I'M sore as an owl.
BECAUSE THE price of hose.
IS FOUR times as high.
AS IT used to be.
AND FOR six years past.
I'VE BEEN packing the stuff.
ALL OVER the land.

I THINK you.

FLYING DIPS AND "FLY DIPS"

Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers,
But now the hand is quicker than the eye,
For "Dick the Dip" picks patriotic pockets,
Whose owners watch the Flying Circus fly.

IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF ONE-EYED PETE

Remember One-Eyed Pete, the educated worm at Harvard, who learned to avoid a passageway charged with electricity and to choose a non-charged one? Having learned that much, One-Eyed Pete died and passed on to the wormy hunting grounds. Education was too much for him. He gave humble illustration of Gray's line: "The paths of glory lead but to the grave." The oyster is the next candidate for low-life honors. A scientist has rigged a little alarm bell to the shell of a live oyster to tell when the oyster opens his mouth to eat. Having served the purpose of science, this educated oyster doubtless will meet his fate in some academic stew.

"WORKLESS SUNDAY" FOR OUR NAVY

Secretary Daniels has ordered more general observance of Sunday in the navy as a day of religious rest. Commanding officers are to see that no cruise shall begin on Sunday, that secular work shall not interfere with divine service and that no work shall be done except what is necessary.

WHO'S BEEN TALKING ABOUT YE EDITOR?

There's something in Northfield beside Bible study and the Moody Seminary. There's a heap of gossip, according to the editor of the Northfield Press. He says in the course of an indignant blast:

"There is altogether too much gossip in this town, too much peddling about of things true, half-true and untrue."

Then he calls for a "No-Gossip Day," saying:

"It would be a real delight if one day could be enjoyed in Northfield without a single gossip's tale starting on its snarling way."

DRIVING AWAY THE BLUES

There are times in the lives of all of us when there is a feeling of depression, so do not consider yourself as unusually afflicted unless these periods of depression are of too frequent occurrence.

You know, by experience, what does you the most good at such times. Why not put this knowledge to some good use in cheering others who are blue?

Mr. Married Man, when you return home and find your wife downhearted what do you do?

Do you upbraid her because of her manner at your homecoming or do you try to enliven her and drive away the sad feeling which she experiences?

Mrs. Married Woman, when your husband comes home at night in a discouraged mood, do you immediately become suspicious and even go so far as to intimate that he regrets that he has to come home at all?

Husbands and wives, why not be real pals?

Why not try to make life's sweeter and happier each for the other, realizing that no one can be up in the tree tops all the time, and the dizzier the heights in joyous mood, the greater the reaction is apt to be.

A cheerful manner, a display of genuine interest and feeling, the introduction of some subject which is delightful or absorbing, a witty story or a proposal to attend some entertainment nearly always drives the blues away.

A Lady's Thumb
Hating Highbrows
Sunday Baseball
One Bubble Bursts

They are holding "intellectuals" as hostages in Hungary, and fiery speech makers inform those intellectuals that most of them will be killed, along with the Bourgeoisie.

Intellectuals would be described by disapproving critics here as "Highbrows" and the Bourgeoisie as "money grubbers."

Curious is the inborn human dislike for anything that possesses or assumes to possess superior information. Everybody remembers the woman living in the slums who resented the offer of a trained nurse to give information about the care of children. "You would tell me how to care for children?" said the indignant mother, "me that has buried seven."

When human beings start out in the hunt for liberty and imagine that they have got it, they nearly always develop at some stage in their program a dislike for the European intellectual. Yet liberty is real, freedom and happiness permanent, only as superior intelligence makes them so.

Not only the poor mother of the slums, but he who calls himself a hard headed practical business man, resents the suggestion that anybody can teach him anything, in his line.

There was a business man in England engaged in coal mining. He had developed many mines. He despised scientific knowledge, and had spent great fortunes boring for coal. He was surprised when a scientific "highbrow" said to him: "When your drill strikes such and such a substance in the earth, drill no more. For nowhere on the earth's surface is there any coal below that particular substance. It was formed in every case before the coal beds, and the coal is always above that layer."

The coal mining gentleman who had spent large sums boring through that particular substance and down below learned that one single piece of advice from a scientist was to save him much money and much effort thereafter.

Men who have mapped out a scheme of human liberty labelled "Bolshevism" are busy boring for human happiness. They will learn, after they have disposed of a sufficient number of "intellectuals" that they might better have kept them alive and learned from them.

Imre Kiraify is dead. He and his brother Boleasy, organizers of spectacular effects and performances like "The Black Crook," were remarkable in this way.

When they selected young ladies for their ballets, the young ladies, to wear dancing costumes, required good figures. The Kiraify brothers would say to each young woman, "Come here and show me your thumb."

Looking at the young woman's thumb, each Kiraify could tell perfectly well all about the young woman's entire shape.

Simply by the thumb they picked out their ballets nymphs. That, in its way, is as wonderful as the scientist who finds a small piece of bone in an ancient cave, and reconstructs from that bone an entire ancient monster.

Telegraph and telephone lines go back to private owners, and one government ownership bubble bursts. Farewell to that beautiful dream, for the present.

New York and its six millions of inhabitants are to have Sunday baseball. But you mustn't play until after 2 p. m. and you mustn't charge more on Sunday than on weekdays. Good-bye to the stern letter of ancient puritanism.

Forty thousand "fans" will break the Sabbath calm of a city in which, once, it was against the law to exhibit flowers in a window from midnight Saturday until midnight Sunday. All flower boxes had to be made removable.

Some citizens will say that this means common sense, that divine wisdom did not set aside one day in seven upon which men must bore themselves in public or enjoy themselves secretly.

Others will dig out gloomy texts and say that the end of the world is coming. This being a republic, each can think what he likes, for the present.

If a few years ago you had said that Americans would soon fly across the Atlantic Ocean, you would have been ridiculed. Had you added, "And all the way across they will talk over the telephone to their friends at home," your friends would have worried and tapped their foreheads. But Americans ARE about to fly across the Atlantic Ocean and they WILL be connected with the United States by telephone all the way, without wires, simply talking through the air. The earth, as well as man, is "fearfully and wonderfully made."
